I am a Nana, Mother, Wife, Business and Executive Coach, Group Facilitator, Mentor, Advisor, Engaged Philanthropist and Angel Investor

Summary:

I partner with individuals and organizations to increase business and community impact, personal and professional development. I have more than 35 years' experience in systems transformation and leadership within and across categories and geographies within Procter & Gamble, a Fortune 100 consumer goods company. 'ReWired' since 2012, my portfolio career includes business and executive coaching, board leadership as well as engaged philanthropy and angel investing. My proudest achievement, however, are my two independently successful children who give back to their communities. Using decades of knowledge, experiences and skill-building, I customize my approach with each client so that they may also realize their own potential.

- Personal Mission: I help individuals and organizations to move past -- and anticipate -- barriers to growth.
- Personal Vision: More people 'pay it forward', creating a kinder, better world for all.
- My Unique value proposition: I help those who've tried to help themselves do it better and faster than they will on their own, sharing techniques they can 'pay forward' to help others
